

MANAGEMENT TRAINEE
HUMAN RESOURCES — CANDIDATE

Riska Rachmawati, S.Pd.

"A future HR leader shaped by classrooms, communities, and coordination — building people, programs, and organizations with equal care."

About Me

An executive snapshot of the leadership, learning-and-development orientation, and analytical grounding I bring to the MT HR programme at ParagonCorp.

I am a Cum Laude graduate in Islamic Education (GPA 3.90) from Universitas Muhammadiyah Bandung, with a career built at the intersection of people development, organizational leadership, and structured learning design. Across classrooms, campus organizations, and government-affiliated programmes, I have consistently taken on roles that require me to coordinate people, translate strategy into execution, and design experiences that help others grow.

I have led a mentor corps of 100+ students supporting 1,500+ freshmen, managed executive administration for a 40-person volunteer team, delivered instruction to 150+ learners across formal and non-formal settings, and contributed to a nationally-funded community programme carrying an IDR 40 million government grant. Each of these experiences sharpened the same core muscles: stakeholder management, structured problem-solving, and a bias for developing the people around me.

I am now seeking to bring this foundation into Human Resources at ParagonCorp — translating my experience in learning facilitation, organizational coordination, and evidence-based thinking into a discipline built for developing an entire workforce.

TENURE

Coordinator of Mentors — PESONAMU Freshmen Onboarding Programme

Universitas Muhammadiyah Bandung • Higher Education • 2024–2025

- Directed the coordination of over 100 mentors supporting the onboarding journey of more than 1,500 freshmen across two consecutive university orientation programmes.
- Directed communication, task delegation, and cross-functional collaboration among organizing committees to ensure consistent participant support and successful programme execution.
- Served as the primary liaison between mentors, committees, and participants — strengthening stakeholder engagement, organizational effectiveness, and leadership development throughout onboarding.

Stakeholder Management

Acted as the single point of contact between three stakeholder groups — mentors, committees, and participants — keeping communication consistent under scale and time pressure.

People Development

Guided a 100-person mentor corps through delegated ownership, building each mentor's confidence and capability to independently support their assigned freshmen.

Why HR? Why ParagonCorp?

Why Human Resources

Every role I have held — teacher, mentor coordinator, executive secretary, research lead — has centred on the same question: how do you help people perform at their best? HR is where that question becomes a discipline. It is the natural next step for someone who has spent years designing learning experiences, coordinating stakeholders, and building structure around people development.

Why ParagonCorp

ParagonCorp's scale as a leading Indonesian FMCG company, paired with its investment in structured Management Trainee development, mirrors the kind of environment I want to grow in — one where learning is systematic, people development is a strategic priority, and impact can be measured at organizational scale.

The Alignment

My leadership of a 100-person mentor corps mirrors what talent development at scale requires. My work coordinating cross-functional stakeholders across government, campus, and community programmes mirrors what HR business partnering demands. My teaching and instructional-design background mirrors what learning & development functions need. I am not entering HR as a new direction — I am formalising a pattern I have already lived.

Long-Term Aspiration

"To grow, within ParagonCorp, from Management Trainee into an HR leader who builds the systems — learning, talent, and organizational development — that let a company's people become its strongest competitive advantage."
